

Gregory M. Baptist is employed by The Greater Salt Lake Municipal Services District (formally Salt Lake County) for last 28 years in the Planning and Development Services Division. Greg is currently employed as the Storm Water Construction Supervisor. Where his duties include but are not limited to, the review of site grading and drainage plans for the development of subdivisions and commercial sites, review and implementation of Geotechnical recommendations, review and implementation of natural hazard mitigations, the review of the SWPPP documents and erosion control plans for construction. Greg also developed the Industrial and Commercial and post construction programs for the MS4. During an audit by the EPA. Greg was tasked to resolve the violations identified in the industrial, construction and post construction programs by implementing a complaint program. Greg is licensed by the International Code Council as a Limited Building Inspector, by the State of Utah as a Registered Stormwater Writer (RSW). Greg is a current member on the Board of Directors for CISEC and the IECA Mountain States Chapter, he has served as the State of Utah Chair for the last 8 years. Greg is a Certified Inspector of Sediment and Erosion Control (CISEC) Inspector and an approved instructor for both the State of Utah and the CISEC training program. Greg worked in the Geotechnical and materials testing field in Northern California for 11 years at LRA Engineering in Sacramento. During his time in California he worked on many projects from highway construction and airport runway construction to large hydroelectric dam projects which created his interest in sediment and erosion control.